

A. A. MOORE, STANDARD EDITOR PASSED AWAY AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS SUNDAY EVENING

Following one week's illness Mr. Andrew A. Moore, editor of this paper passed peacefully away at his home on Sunday evening. While little hope was held out for his recovery, it came as a great shock to his friends to hear of his sudden demise.

He was born in Kincardine, Bruce County, Ontario, April 11th, 1868, the only son of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Moore.

He has been engaged in newspaper work all his life, having started his career under L. W. Shannon, of the Kingston News. He came to Calgary in 1907 to join the staff of the News Telegram when it was established. He severed his connection with the News Telegram when he became business manager of the Morning Alberta which post he held for over ten years. Following this he was engaged in Commercial printing for about ten years previous to coming to Strathmore.

He bought the Strathmore Standard from John McKenzie and took over the publishing of this paper Feb. 1st, 1928.

Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. W. D. MacLean and Evelyn, and five grand children. The sweetest lives are those to duty and to God. Whose deeds both great and small are close knit strands of an unbroken thread. Whose love envelopes all. The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells; The boots of life, the shining record tells. Thy love shall chant its own best tunes, After its own life working. A child's kiss Set on thy stinging lips shall make thee glad; A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich. A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong; They that have been served thyself by every sense of service, which thou rendered.

Robert Bowring

The funeral service was conducted in Strathmore United Church, at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Rev. E. B. Brundage delivering a brief but touching address. The service was largely attended, not only by friends of Mr. Moore, but by many from the entire surrounding district.

H. G. McCrex editor of the Hants Herald, Secretary of the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association of which the deceased was a prominent and well beloved member, accompanied the remains to Calgary to attend the burial service in Union Cemetery.

Among the beautiful floral tributes was a large floral emblem, "30," sent by the A. W. N. A. this being the signal of the editor to the printers at the close of the day that "only is closest sympathy." The Story is Written.

The Pull Beaters were Mr. George T. Berry, Mayor A. D. Shrimpton, Mr. D. Gardner, Mr. T. E. Wright, Mr. A. P. Gray and Mr. H. McGregor.

C. P. R. HOLSTEN COW IS GRAND CHAMPION

Strathmore finished one rung higher on the ladder of western Canada's agricultural fame last week when Strathmore Wayne Sylvia, Holstein cow of the C. P. R. dairy here, won the grand championship in her class at the Royal Winter Show at Toronto.

The cow is eight years old and was bred, raised and milked on the C. P. R. dairy farm here, under the efficient management of Art Hay, general farm manager.

This triumph of the Strathmore dairy herd is especially noteworthy, since it is the first time in the history of the Royal Winter Show that this championship has gone to a dairy cow of Ontario.

It is further a cause of pride and satisfaction to the C. P. R. Dept. of Agriculture for the reason that Strathmore Wayne Sylvia competed against some of the best Holsteins in the world, from the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota and other parts of the United States.

C. P. R. Pat Steers Win In addition to winning the grand championship in the dairy Holstein class the C. P. R. also had other champions in the class at Toronto last week.

This carnival of pure bred Angus steers in number were 1922 calves bred and raised on the C. P. R. farm at Coalville.

They weighed 1196 pounds each and sold at 12 cents per pound.

This is the third winning for the C. P. R. in this class in four exhibitions.

For the 12th time in twenty-three years the Dominion of Canada won the world championship in wheat this week at Chicago.

Frank Isaacson of Elfron, Sask., won the lighter class, but it was the coveted title of "King of the World" this year and Ian King of Wolf Creek, Alta. won the world's old championship.

William Rogers of Tappen, B. C. with a sample of durum wheat won the reserve wheat championship.

Residence Fire Quickly Controlled

What might easily have been a disastrous fire in the home of Mrs. Rob. West, was speedily controlled and extinguished by the prompt and efficient action of Strathmore's volunteer fire company under Fire Chief McFarland on Friday evening of last week.

Mrs. West and son Leslie left home around 8 p.m. to attend the performance of Journey's End at the Memorial Hall and left everything in order on their departure.

Later in the evening Mrs. McKenzie a neighbor noticed the fire through the windows of the West house. She at once gave the alarm and the volunteer fire department turned out at full force and quickly controlled the flame which was confined to the kitchen.

The kitchen walls and floor were damaged to the extent of about $200 it is estimated.

Mrs. West and son keenly appreciated the prompt work of Fire Chief McFarland and company as only a few minutes delay might have meant the loss of their home.

After the fire it was discovered that three sacks of potatoes and 12 quarts of fruit had been stolen from the West home and it is thought this theft had something to do with the starting of the fire.

Back to Grass Cheaper Lands

A movement among taxpayers in the United States of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and other western states called the Back to Grass system is now bearing fruit.

On vast areas of cheap homestead lands where farmers were drying out and starting out year after year a system of reclassification of lands is under way.

Where a small area is seen to be good enough to support an agricultural population it is allowed to continue as farm land, but in areas where farmers are being forced out by drought and crop failure, these lands are classified as ranching lands and are allowed to go back to grass.

Already large areas in Montana and the same definitely removed from agricultural use and are now supporting thousands of cattle sheep and horses and are able to pay taxes and a small profit to the owners, under this system.

CANADA'S DESTINY

Canada may be the economic center of the British Empire some day. Lord McMillan said while delivering an address in London, England. He had just returned from the Dominion where he headed a enquiry into the banking situation. The vastness of Canada, its infinite variety of resources and its capability of supporting a large population, together with its isolation from Europe, may have been the reasons which impelled the British peer to make his prophecy.

There is a distinct possibility that Lord McMillan may be right. The British have wrought wonders with their island home but its small surface area, if nothing else, decidedly limits its future development. The British Isles cannot support a much larger population. Further ranges than merely courts trouble of a serious nature. No human being in all the world loves his native land more intensely than does the Britisher. The green and pleasant land of England, is to him the epitome of everything desirable in the way of a homeland. The tragedy is that the island is too small for further expansion.

Canada has abundance of room in her vast country, and also abundance of resources in her farm lands, her mines, her forests and her lakes and rivers. Here a population twice the size of that of the British Isles could be comfortably supported. The climate is severe, it is true but it is endurable, and even in our climate there is infinite variety. There is nothing surer than the arrival of the day when Canada will be a tremendously important world country. Her future is all before her. Canada may give the British Empire a new inspiration and a new lease of life.

Hanna Hertr

THE GREATEST TRAGEDY

The deepest tragedy of the depression years is not the unpaid taxes, the uncollected debts, the mounting interest on land contracts and mortgages.

These are but petty able issues compared with the actual tragedy. The actual tragedy is the idleness, hopelessness and aimlessness of the Youth of Canada and every other land.

This year around 250,000 young people in the opening years of manhood and womanhood have come out of Canadian educational institutions to face the vast problem of life. We have educated them, given them a reasonable hope that in a civilized country, they would at once enter upon a useful, pleasant life work.

And now they stand staring into a blank space, idle, aimless, hopeless. They are at the most impressionable age and yield to environment and impression as clay in the potter's hand. This is the greatest tragedy of all.

"Royal Scot" in Rugged Setting

Puffing her way along the tumbling Fraser canyon over rusting trestles and through cavernous tunnels, the "Royal Scot" is shown here at the approached North Bend, B.C., at the start of her crossing of the Canadian Rockies over the scenic main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The London, Midland &

Scottish Flyer accomplished the Rockies crossing without benefit of "buckley" power and entirely under her own steam, thus writing another achievement into the record of her Canadian and American. The rugged nature of the mountains along the C.P.R. line near North Bend, with the Fraser River rushing through its rocky caverns to the Pacific, shows the kind of country this famous British train conquered on her history-making trip over the Canadian Pacific.

Canadians continued to give the Royal Scot a warm-hearted welcome. Western Canadian cities turned out almost en masse to cheer and examine the visitor from the Mother land.
